Mrs. Sallie McD. Humphreys is quite sick at her home in Washington.

"Tee Gwine Down to Jamestown," "At Rest" and "Little Alice," the three pretty musical compositions by Mrs. Frances Goggin Maltby of Washington, are for sale at Taylor's and at the Gerbrich store.

The monster hogs butchered by Emil Weis the other day had monster tusks as well. They measured over six inches in length and curled like those seen in pictures of a wild animal.
See them in his shop window.

Think of it. "Tee Gwine Down to Jamestown,"
the popular Southern melody composed by Mrs.
Frances Goggin Maltby, is meeting with much success as a musical hit at the Jamestown Exposition, where it strikes its natural locale.
The Public Ledger is pleased to note the success of Mason's gifted song-writer and hopes other popular compositions may follow from the author's versatile pen. Mrs. Maltby has written other songs—two particularly, "At Rest"
and "Little Alice," which have met with approbation from the critical public.

WILLSON denies that he is the attorney for the Tobacco Trust. But records show that he was.—Flemingsburg Times-Democrat.

Br'er DULEY, that's an illogical accusation. Let's tote fair in this campaign, lest some of us Editors may be branded as liars and premeditated falsifiers.

Tobacco Growers,
You Wish a Square Deal, Give Willson a Square Deal.

You say that "WILLSON denies that he is the attorney for the Tobacco Trust."

Now, Mr. Willson is not the attorney for the Tobacco Trust.

You say, "but records show that he was."

That is a fact. Mr. WILLSON prosecuted two cases for the American Tobacco Company and got paid for his work, just like thousands of farmers in Mason and Fleming counties have sold their tobacco to the same company and used the money to support their families and pay off the mortgages on their farms.

Mr. WILLSON is a lawyer, and a good one, too. Wouldn't he be a fool to decline a case from any responsible individual or corporation because he or it was a "Trust?"

Kentucky tobacco growers are just now trying to force the Tobacco Trust to come to terms. Are they not after the money of the big Trust, just as Mr. WILLSON was, and all of us are right now?

Why strain at a gnat and swallow a camel?

Why censure Mr. WILLSON for selling his time and legal ability to a corporation, as any other lawyer would have been proud to have done, and then, at the same time, and in the same campaign, pat BECKHAM and HAGER on the back for accepting a $15,000 campaign fund from this hated Tobacco Trust?

Mr. WILLSON's "crime" was nothing like as heinous as BECKHAM and HAGER's, because the latter used the $15,000 from the American Tobacco Company as a corruption fund to buy registration certificates from Negroes and ignorant white Republicans. Mr. WILLSON used the fees he honestly earned from the same company to support his family.

Now, honest tobacco growers, you must be fair and consistent in this matter and not judge with prejudice in this trumped-up charge against Mr. WILLSON, else God and the right will rise up and smite you with the blight of fools who make failures by using illegal means to gain an honest purpose.

Your conscience will convict you, confusion will follow you, unless you give every man the square deal that you are after yourself.

DOES POLITENESS PAY?

The little man was saving up for his summer holidays, so he had no newspaper to hide behind when the lady of commanding presence entered the car, which was already full.

She was a woman of experience, and did not waste her energy in looking at all the male passengers in the hope that one of them would offer his seat. She simply concentrated her gaze upon the little man and waited.

"Madam," he said, "take this seat."

Without a word of thanks she sat down, when he indulged in that healthful exercise known as strap-hanging.

"What is the use of standing there?" she cried.

"Come and sit on my lap."

"Madam," faltered the little man, blushing in his embarrassment, "I—I—"

"You little wretch!" screamed the lady, "I didn't mean you. I was calling to my daughter at the end of the car."

What to Do About Colds

The best thing to do is not to have them if they can possibly be avoided. Colds are a discomfort and a serious danger. Many people have not as yet fully realized that colds can now be usually prevented if treated in time and be cured quickly after they do come. The remedy to use is

CHENOWETH'S COLD CURE.

This remedy stops starting colds if taken in time. It cures fresh colds in 24 hours and settled colds in half the usual time. It can be depended upon to do this practically every time. If it ever fails we refund the money.

SALVATION ARMY

Gets Down to Work in Maysville
Good Meeting Last Evening on the Esplanade.

The upper Esplanade was ablaze last evening with light, music, preaching and prayer and reminded one of the metropolitan Salvation Army in full action. City Missionary Reed, wife and family were in charge assisted by Mr. Bruce Littleton, an ex-Salvationist, who has taken up the good work in this city.

The meeting last night was very satisfactory and the music awoke the echoes of the evening, while the sermons of Revs. Reed and Littleton were convincing and eloquent and enjoyed by quite a crowd.

Let the good work proceed and all should join in and push this good cause.

THE FRANKFORT GANG

Beckham, Hager, Hargis, Haley and Co. Excoriated By Gen. Basil Duke

In a recent speech at Louisville, Gen. Basil W. Duke, the gallant ex-Confederate soldier and life-long Democrat, among other things said—

"I am sometimes asked how I, as a former Confederate soldier, can reconcile myself to vote against these latter day Democrats. I answer, 'How is it possible, if I was sincere in my convictions and conduct then, can I now endorse the unspeakable methods which these modern Democratic candidates preach and practice?' I sometimes wonder what it was the Confederate soldier did, in the time of his dire trial, when he was freezing and starving, enduring every form and extremity of privation and danger, fighting against odds, holding out even against hope—in the effort to perform his duties—what was it that he did that can make any one venture to ask why he stands for law and decency and justice now? In order that such a suggestion may be understood in its true character, I will ask you to reflect and consider what the four men, who may be selected as those most perfectly representative of the best and highest Confederate sentiment would do if situated as we are now. Let us suppose that Jefferson Davis, Robert Lee, Albert S. Johnston and Stonewall Jackson—the four men we hold in highest estimation, whom we revere as our typical heroes and are canonized in our memories—let us suppose them to be still living and citizens of Louisville. Now imagine, if such a thing be within the region of imagination, that some emissary of the Machine should approach Mr. Davis—who whether he was right or wrong in his political creed, was above almost all men in his high ideal of civic duty—and should ask him to aid in the conspiracy to deprive his people of free and fair suffrage—should ask him to justify the unprecedented declaration of a candidate for executive office that if elected, he would not enforce the laws? He would probably make no answer, for such a suggestion might well render him speechless, but the blaze of burning scorn and indignation which would leap from the eye that never quailed before any danger might melt even the brass of the Machine."

WHAT LEE AND JACKSON WOULD HAVE DONE TO SUCH DEMOCRATS.

"Suppose such a proposition should be made Gen. Lee—as grand and majestic in misfortune as in success, no less great and heroic when repulsed by overwhelming odds at Gettysburg, or when he yielded, as the dying lion yields, at Appomattox, than when he looked over the victorious fields of Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville—or that it were made to Gen. Johnston, the great Virginian's only peer, and whose brave heart and mighty soul never harbored a mean thought or unworthy motive. What response do you think it would receive? Or suppose that some gentleman from the Democratic Campaign Committee should visit Stonewall Jackson and say, 'General, the Democratic party is in bad shape in Louisville. The other fellows have got us beat if there is an honest vote and a fair count. So we must resort to strategy. We must pad the registration, import repeaters, move polling places, stuff the ballotboxes and do a lot of alphabetical voting. Now we know that you are a master of strategic device, and we wish to have you meet our committee and give them some idea along the same line?' I don't think old Stonewall would say anything. He was always a man of a few words, but I hardly believe the messenger would leave his presence alive. Old Jack was a devout Christian as well as a great soldier, but I think he would make of that man the proper material for a funeral, and there would be one Democratic vote less on the day of the election. Stonewall Jackson never feared mortal man, but he did fear to do anything which his God and his conscience forbade, and he would never have indorsed that kind of Democracy."

THE BRACKEN BOARD

First Quarterly Meeting Held at the Baptist Church Yesterday

The First Quarterly Meeting of the Bracken Board was held at the First Baptist Church yesterday. The members who responded to the roll call were as follows:

Walter Matthews, Mayslick, chairman.

C. D. Wells, Maysville, Secretary.

Rev. S. W. Partee, Carlisle.

Rev. C. G. Skillman, Augusta.

It was moved by Bro. Skillman, seconded by Bro. Ivey, that the Board have its regular

Quarterly Meetings on Friday before the fourth

Sunday in January, April and July, at Maysville.

The Board then went into an election of an Executive Committee, the following being elected: W. R. Ivey, Chairman, C. N. Bolinger, Walter Matthews, Alex Marshall and H. T. Swart.

It was moved and carried that a committee be appointed to suggest a schedule to the Churches for taking their collections for the various objects. The following committee was appointed: S. W. Partee, Chairman, W. R. Ivey and C. G. Skillman.

It was moved and carried that the Executive Board be instructed to employ a Missionary for half of his time to do work at large in this Association.

Bro. Thomas Gaither was elected Treasurer of this Board.

At the noon hour the Board took recess for one hour. They were conducted to the dining-room in the Church, where the good women of the Baptist Church had prepared an elegant dinner. About a dozen of the ladies were present to extend to these distinguished gentleman an old-fashioned Kentucky welcome.

After dinner, so delightfully served by this noble band, it was decided by some of the body that they would like to have the meetings monthly instead of quarterly.

A very hearty vote of thanks was tendered these good women for their splendid services.

After a very delightful and profitable session, the Board adjourned to meet in Maysville again on the Friday before the fourth Sunday in January, 1908.

C. AND O. WRECK

Three Cars Jump the Track on the Lexington Division Yesterday

Near Klondike Station, four miles West of Lexington, yesterday the Westbound passenger train on the C. and O. was wrecked. Three cars and the trucks of the tender jumped the track and ran a long distance on the ties, the cars overturning in a cut.

The engine did not leave the track. The ties and rails were torn up for three hundred yards and all traffic was delayed for twelve hours, fast trains from the West going by way of Maysville, while locals transferred passengers.

Expressman Albert Chapman and Baggage-man Swetman, both of Ashland, were badly injured.

Mrs. Carrie Nation was one of the passengers and preached a sermon on the scene.

Rev. Bird Hughes of Sardis is taking in the sights at the Jamestown Exposition.

On the farm of Mr. Samuel L. Cooper, near Sardis, recently, a fine brood sow, the property of Alfred Cooper, farrowed nine pigs, one of which was a double-pig, having two full size bodies, eight legs, regularly formed, but only one head, but had four ears and a double tongue. The pig was fully matured but dead when found.

Near Brooksville several days ago a singular accident occurred on the Brooksville and Wellsville Railroad. C. D. Asbury of Robertson county had shipped a carload of cattle to a party at Dayton, O., and after the train left Brooksville the car containing the cattle jumped the track, rolled down an embankment, turned bottom side up and broke in two parts. Not one of the cattle was killed and only few were bruised. Though luckily escaping this wreck, one of the bunch was struck and killed that night by the train returning from Wellsville.
